

Proposed Tax Changes in Congress

If passed, the $3.5 trillion Build Back Better Act would alter some federal tax rates.

Provided by Scott E. Holstein, CPA, PFS, CFP®

Investors are watching the Build Back Better Act. This $3.5 trillion bill, refined through months-long negotiations, may be approaching a final vote in the House of Representatives. If the BBA becomes law, it would finance large-scale infrastructure projects, authorize a major expansion of parts of the country's social safety net, and fund college education, grant, and entrepreneurial programs over the next ten years.^{1,2}

This information is designed to provide general information on the subjects covered. It is not intended to provide specific legal or tax advice and cannot be used to avoid tax penalties or to promote, market, or recommend any tax plan or arrangement. Remember that tax laws and tax rates are constantly changing.

The passage of the BBA would mean higher taxes for the wealthy and big businesses. To help pay for all these initiatives, the new law may raise the capital gains tax rate. Americans in the highest federal tax bracket (households earning $400,000 or more) would again face a 39.6% marginal income tax rate, up from 37%. Itemized deductions for taxpayers earning more than $400,000 might be capped at 28%. The country's corporate tax rate would be lifted to 26% from the current 21%.^{2,3}

At the same time, lower-income and middle-income households could see some of their potential tax credits increase, and Medicare coverage might expand so seniors could use Medicare benefits to pay for dental, vision, and hearing care.²

How could these tax changes impact a wealthy household? Bill Hoagland, a senior vice president at the Bipartisan Policy Center, gave CNBC a quick overview this summer. By his estimate, the average federal income tax rate for households earning more than $1 million would rise more than 2% to 32.5%. Households making between $500,000 and $1 million would see their average federal income tax rate climb 4% to roughly 31%.⁴

The implications are clear. High earners and those with high taxable investments may want to consult tax and financial professionals to explore tax management opportunities. As the Tax Foundation notes, investment income typically represents around 40% of household income for America's millionaires – so for the wealthy, the proposed 5% rise for the top capital gains tax rate is particularly concerning.⁴

Tax policy proposals and opinions expressed are subject to change without notice and are not intended as tax advice. Consult a professional before making any tax or investment decision.

Scott E. Holstein, CPA, PFS, CFP® may be reached at 800.458.9330 or info@prudentwm.com.
www.prudentwm.com

This material was prepared by MarketingPro, Inc., and does not necessarily represent the views of the presenting party, nor their affiliates. This information has been derived from sources believed to be accurate. Please note - investing involves risk, and past performance is no guarantee of future results. The publisher is not engaged in rendering legal, accounting or other professional services. If assistance is needed, the reader is advised to engage the services of a competent professional. This information should not be construed as investment, tax or legal advice and may not be relied on for the purpose of avoiding any Federal tax penalty. This is neither a solicitation nor recommendation to purchase or sell any investment or insurance product or service, and should not be relied upon as such. All indices are unmanaged and are not illustrative of any particular investment.

Securities and investment advisory services offered through Cetera Advisor Networks LLC, member FINRA/SIPC, a registered investment advisor. Certain advisory services and financial planning services offered through Vicus Capital, Inc., a federally registered investment advisor. Cetera is under separate ownership from any other named entity. Please remember to contact Scott E. Holstein's Office if there are any changes in your personal/financial situation or investment objectives for the purpose of reviewing/evaluating/revising our previous recommendations and/or services. The information contained in this e-mail message is intended only for the personal and confidential use of the recipient(s) named above. If the reader of this message is not the intended recipient or an agent responsible for delivering it to the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that you have received this document in error and that any review, dissemination, distribution, or copying of this message is strictly prohibited. If you have received this communication in error, please notify us immediately by e-mail, and delete the original message. This communication is for informational purposes only and nothing herein should be construed as a solicitation, recommendation or an offer to buy or sell any securities or product. The information contained herein has been obtained from sources believed to be reliable but we do not guarantee accuracy or completeness. Client account information or transaction details do not supersede mailed confirmations or account statements which are the only official records containing this information. Electronic mail sent through the internet is not secure and could be intercepted by a third party. For your protection, avoid sending identifying information, such as account, Social Security, or card numbers to us or others. Further, do not send time-sensitive, action-oriented messages, such as transaction orders, fund transfer instructions, or check stop payments, as it is our policy not to accept such items electronically.

Citations

1. Detroit Free Press, October 4, 2021
2. CBS News, October 5, 2021
3. Forbes, May 14, 2021
4. CNBC, August 11, 2021